Learning Activities: Quizzes, Tests, Classwork, and Homework

These tools can be set up for automatic grading!

Don't spend time grading multiple choice assignments. Use one of these tools instead!

(You can also use some of these tools to ask open-ended questions and then grade them one at a time!)

 Actively Learn	Actively Learn is an online literacy platform for English/Language Arts, Social Studies, and Science. Texts (and videos!) with scaffolding and higher-order questions.
	Self-titled, "a minimalist feedback tool," Answer Garden doesn't collect student identifiers, but it allows students to enter short responses to prompts and watch as answers "grow" in size with repetition. Use it for real time audience participation, online brainstorming and classroom feedback.
	Commonlit allows you to assign and grade within the platform. The CommonLit Digital Library contains thousands of free, supplemental texts, lessons, and quizzes in both English and Spanish. It's fantastic for text analysis and comparison, and it's free!
	Decktoys is awesome! Use it to create digital "breakouts" and/or learning paths for students to follow. Build complete lessons within minutes with your existing teaching content such as study sets, PPT or Google Slides. It takes some time to set up, but the result is so cool! The AI-integration is fantastic!
	Desmos is specifically dedicated to math engagement and real-world mathematics applications. Develop critical thinking along with math skills!
	Engagement you can see, results you can measure. Empower students to take an active role in their learning with interactive video lessons that spark creativity and curiosity. Edpuzzle is the best way to make videos into lessons and learning assessments. You can add quiz questions, voiceover, and audio notes to any video! Now with AI-power!
	Figjam is a collaborative online whiteboard to brainstorm and collaborate, all in one place.
